Experience

Thomas Kelch brings expertise in property tax disputes and bankruptcy law along with a background in academia to the firm.

Mr. Kelch represents counties in property tax disputes in the Superior Courts and Courts of Appeal. This representation has resulted in four recent published opinions in the 2nd District Court of Appeal. He has recently worked on assessment disputes relating to the Microsoft Theatre, the hotels at the LA Live complex and the personal property at Paramount Studios.

Mr. Kelch represents an ad hoc committee of 17 California counties in the PG&E bankruptcy case. He has also represented debtors, creditors, creditors' committees, and purchasers of property in bankruptcy and has represented creditors in cases like Enron and Mirant Energy. Mr. Kelch is a co-author of "Real Property Issues in Bankruptcy" and has written numerous articles on bankruptcy law.

For more than 25 years Mr. Kelch was a professor of law teaching Animal Law, Bankruptcy and Corporate Reorganization classes, as well as Corporations, Contracts, Commercial Law, International and Comparative Law, Real Estate Finance and Professional Responsibility. He has published extensively on bankruptcy, real estate issues in bankruptcy and animal law, and has lectured in the United States and Europe on bankruptcy and animal law issues.
