Experience

Zoe Tatarsky brings to Renne Public Law Group (RPLG) a strong blend of legal expertise, public service experience and a commitment to advancing equitable communities. She joined the firm from the Superior Court of California, County of San Francisco, where she served as a legal research attorney. In that role, she briefed judges on opposed motions — synthesizing arguments, distilling procedural histories and recommending tentative orders — on matters including motions for summary judgment, demurrers, motions to strike, anti-SLAPP motions and motions to compel arbitration.

Her time with the trial court sharpened her understanding of the forms and styles of argument that resonate with judges and deepened her familiarity with the employment and public entity cases central to RPLG's practice. Prior to her legal career, Zoe worked as a civil litigation paralegal at San Francisco-based Open Door Legal, supporting cases that advanced economic and social justice. She also gained international experience in community-based education and leadership development as a program coordinator for Global Glimpse in the Dominican Republic and a project supervisor for Amigos de las Américas.
