Experience

Mauricio Grande is an attorney in the firm's Litigation practice group. He represents public agencies in state court. Mauricio focuses his practice on labor and employment cases involving breach of contract, discrimination, harassment and retaliation claims. He also has experience representing California counties in property tax disputes.

Before joining Renne Public Law Group, Mauricio was a judicial law clerk to Judges Garrett L. Wong, Cynthia M. Lee (ret.) and Samuel K. Feng of the San Francisco Superior Court. In law school, Mauricio participated in moot court and served as a civil procedure and property law tutor for the Legal Education Opportunity Program. He continues to give back as a UC Law San Francisco adjunct professor and bar success specialist.
